4 MARKUP OF H.R. 527, THE SMALL BUSINESS REGULATORY FLEXIBILITY
5 IMPROVEMENTS ACT OF 2015
6 Tuesday, January 27, 2015
7 House of Representatives
8 Committee on the Judiciary
9 Washington, D.C.

10 The committee met, pursuant to call, at 2:44 p.m., in 11 Room 2141, Rayburn Office Building, Hon. Bob Goodlatte
12 [chairman of the committee] presiding.

13 Present: Representatives Goodlatte, Smith, Chabot,
14 Issa, Forbes, King, Franks, Gohmert, Jordan, Chaffetz, Gowdy, 15 Labrador, Farenthold, Collins, DeSantis, Walters, Buck, 16 Ratcliffe, Trott, Bishop, Conyers, Nadler, Lofgren, Johnson, 17 Pierluisi, Chu, Richmond, DelBene, Jeffries, Cicilline, and 18 Peters.

19 Staff present: Shelly Husband, Majority Staff Director; 20 Branden Ritchie, Deputy Staff Director/Chief Counsel; Allison
21 Halataei, Parliamentarian and General Counsel; Daniel Flores, 22 Counsel; Kelsey Deterding, Majority Clerk; Perry Apfelbaum, 23 Minority Staff Director; Danielle Brown, Parliamentarian;
24 Slade Bond, Minority Counsel; and Maggie Lopatin, Minority 25 Clerk.

26

27 Chairman Goodlatte. Good afternoon. The Judiciary
28 Committee will come to order, and without objection, the 29 chair is authorized to declare a recess at any time.

30 Pursuant to notice, I now call up H.R. 527 for purposes
31 of markup and move that the committee report the bill
32 favorably to the House. The clerk will report the bill.

33 Ms. Deterding. H.R. 527, to amend Chapter 6 of Title 5, 34 United States Code, commonly known as the Regulatory 35 Flexibility Act, to ensure complete analysis of potential 36 impacts on small entities of rules and for other purposes.

37 Chairman Goodlatte. Without objection, the bill is 38 considered as read and open for amendment at any point.

39 [The information follows:]

40

41 Chairman Goodlatte. And I will begin by recognizing 42 myself for an opening statement.

43 I want to thank my esteemed Judiciary Committee 44 colleague and Small Business Committee chairman, Steve 45 Chabot, for his introduction of this important bipartisan 46 bill. This is urgently needed legislation that passed the 47 House 3 times during the last two Congresses, only to be 48 obstructed by the Senate. I am optimistic that this term it
49 will be considered and passed by both chambers of Congress
50 and presented to the President for his signature.

51 Poll after poll has demonstrated that the level of 52 Federal regulation coming from Washington is at the top of 53 the list of obstacles faced by America's small businesses,
54 our top job creators. Congress can and should act to free 55 small businesses of the burdens and waste associated with 56 excessive Federal regulations so that more jobs will be 57 available to Americans trying to make a better life for 58 themselves and their families. Simply put, we cannot escape
59 from America's virtual jobs depression until we help 60 America's small businesses escape from unnecessary hurdles to 61 the creation of new jobs. That is why prompt passage of this 62 legislation is so important.

63 The Small Business Regulatory Flexibility Improvements

64 Act will, for the first time in nearly 20 years, overhaul the 65 laws that govern how Federal regulators should consider and 66 minimize the adverse impacts of new regulations on small 67 businesses. Primarily, the bill reinforces the Regulatory 68 Flexibility Act of 1980 and the Small Business Regulatory 69 Enforcement Fairness Act of 1996. It only requires agencies
70 to do what current law tries to achieve and what common sense 71 dictates should be done.

72 But current law is beset by loopholes, and those 73 loopholes must be closed. That is what the Small Business 74 Regulatory Flexibility Improvements Act at long last does.
75 This bill is a timely and logical step to protect small 76 businesses from overregulation. It recognizes that economic 77 growth ultimately depends on job creators, not regulators.
78 The bill represents a critical means to convert that 79 recognition into reality, and I urge all members to support 80 its passage.

81 And it is now my pleasure to recognize the ranking
82 member of the committee, the gentleman from Michigan, Mr.
83 Conyers, for his opening statement.

84 Mr. Conyers. Thank you, Chairman Goodlatte. It is with 85 some regret that I announce to my colleagues that under the 86 guise of protecting small businesses from burdensome

87 statutory regulations, this is yet another attempt to, one,
88 prevent regulatory agencies from promulgating regulations
89 that protect the health and safety of Americans; two, it
90 overwhelms regulatory agencies with unnecessary and costly 91 analysis; and, three, gives well-financed businesses and 92 anti-regulatory organizations even more opportunities to 93 thwart the rulemaking process. And it is not embarrassed or 94 deceitful about it. They do it straight out. I mean, it is 95 there for everybody to see and understand.

96 And this explains why the Administration, with respect
97 to similar legislation considered in the 112th Congress,
98 explained in its support of its veto threat that the bill
99 would seriously undermine the ability of agencies to execute
100 their statutory mandates, and impede the ability of agencies 101 to provide the public with basic protections. It also 102 explains why so many organizations are opposed: The AFL-CIO, 103 the American Lung Association, the Consumer Federation of 104 America, Consumers Union, Public Citizens, the United Auto
105 Workers, and the National Women's Law, just to name a few.

106 And so, my other concern about H.R. 527 is that it would 107 jeopardize Americans' health and safety. How? Well, our 108 Federal agencies are charged with promulgating regulations
109 that impact virtually every aspect of our lives, including

110 the air we breathe, the water we drink, the food we eat, the 111 cars we drive, and the toys we give our children. But the 112 far-reaching legislation now before the committee today would 113 undermine the ability of Federal agencies to quickly respond 114 to emergent health and safety concerns.

115 Section 5 of the bill, for example, repeals the 116 authority under current law that allows an agency to waive or 117 delay initial analysis required under the Regulatory 118 Flexibility Act in response to an emergency that makes 119 compliance or timely compliance impractical. In other words, 120 we repeal that section that might be used in an emergency.
121 So if there is a widespread E.coli outbreak or an imminent
122 environmental disaster that could be quickly addressed 123 through regulation, this bill says do not worry, do not rush, 124 let us have the chief counsel for advocacy decide. Because 125 the bill is drafted so broadly, any regulation that has even 126 a speculative indirect effect on small business, even in an 127 emergency, could be delayed by the bill's chokehold.

128 I will ask unanimous consent to put the rest of my 129 statement in the record, and I urge my colleagues to consider 130 this bill very carefully and support me in opposing it.

131 Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

132 [The information follows:]

134 Chairman Goodlatte. Thank you, Mr. Conyers. And I now
135 recognize the gentleman from Ohio, the sponsor of this 136 legislation, Mr. Chabot, for his opening statement.

137 Mr. Chabot. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. The Committee on 138 Small Business and the Committee on Judiciary have worked 139 very closely for a long time on this issue, and I want to 140 thank Chairman Goodlatte for his leadership on this bill.

141 Since my esteemed colleague, the ranking member from 142 Michigan, has named some of the entities that are opposed to 143 it, I thought I would just take a minute to name just a few.
144 This is just a smattering of those that are in favor of it:
145 The American Dental Association, the American Farm Bureau
146 Federation, the American Road and Transportation Builders, 147 the American Trucking Association, Associated Builders and 148 Contractors, Consumers Electronics Association, the 149 Independent Community Bankers, as well as the National 150 Federation of Credit Unions, the Dairy Foods Association, the 151 Homebuilders, the National Association of Manufacturers,
152 National Council of Chain Restaurants, the textile
153 organizations, the National Electronic Manufacturers
154 Association, NFIB, the National Federation of Independent 155 Business, which is really kind of the gold standard for 156 representatives of small businesses in this country, the

157 Owner-Operator Independent Drivers, the U.S. Chamber of 158 Commerce, and many, many others. So there are a whole lot of 159 folks that favor this, what I believe is good legislation.

160 As chairman of the Committee on Small Business, I am 161 very glad that we are moving this bill forward today despite 162 the fact that we are starting a little bit late this 163 afternoon. This legislation addresses a goal shared by both 164 Republicans and many Democrats: the need to craft more 165 efficient, less burdensome rules and regulations.

166 It is no secret that small businesses are critical to 167 America's success. They are a means for millions of families
168 to get ahead in life. They employ one out of every two 169 Americans working in the private sector, and create two of 170 every three new private sector jobs. So about 70 percent of 171 every new job that is now created in this country is created 172 by small businesses, and those are the folks that are over 173 burdened with overregulation, and that is what this begins to 174 address.

175 One of the biggest challenges small businesses face is 176 understanding and complying with new regulations. The Small 177 Business Regulatory Flexibility Improvements Act of 2015, 178 this legislation, will modernize the rulemaking process by 179 improving a good governance law that turns 35 years of age

180 this year, the Regulatory Flexibility Act or RFA. The RFA
181 requires agencies to assess the impact of their regulations
182 on small businesses. If the impacts are significant, 183 agencies must consider whether there are alternative 184 approaches that would impose lower burdens on small 185 businesses. In other words, the law requires agencies to 186 consider if there is a more cost effective way for them to 187 achieve their regulatory objective.

188 The problem is that even after congressional amendments
189 and presidential directives, agencies still fail to comply 190 with the RFA's common sense requirements. Hearings held by 191 the Committee on Small Business over the past several years 192 have shown that agencies still are not considering the 193 consequences of their actions on small businesses. More 194 needs to be done to save small businesses real money because 195 Federal regulations are estimated to cost up to $2 trillion
196 annually. Reducing unnecessary regulatory costs allow small 197 businesses to use those resources to expand their businesses
198 and, most importantly, hire new workers.

199 Making smarter, less burdensome rules is a goal of 200 Republicans and, as I said, many Democrats. In 2011, 201 President Obama unequivocally acknowledged that 202 overregulation "stifled innovation and has had a chilling

203 effect on growth and jobs," and wrote that his Administration 204 was "firmly committed to eliminating excessive and 205 unjustified burdens on small businesses by ensuring that 206 regulations are designed with careful consideration of their 207 effects." That was President Obama.

208 I could not agree more, and that is exactly what this 209 bill does. The bill ensures careful consideration of the 210 consequences of rulemaking through the removal of loopholes
211 that agencies have used to avoid compliance with the RFA. It 212 forces agencies to genuinely scrutinize the impacts of their 213 actions on small businesses by requiring them to look at both 214 direct and reasonably foreseeable indirect effects. The bill 215 also levels the regulatory playing field by increasing 216 opportunities for small businesses to provide early input in 217 the rulemaking process.

218 To my colleagues opposed to this bill, let me remind you 219 that nothing in the bill will prevent an agency from issuing 220 a rule, just issuing a rule without understanding its effect
221 on America's most important job creators, small businesses.
222 This bill is identical to legislation the House passed twice
223 last Congress. It includes eight Democratic amendments that 224 the Committee on Small Business adopted in the 112th and 225 113th Congresses, and has strong support from the small

226 business community. I already mentioned a number of those,
227 and there are 10 times the number that I actually named, 228 organizations in favor of this.

229 As chairman of the Committee on Small Business, it is my 230 goal to do everything that our committee can to lift up
231 American working families by helping small businesses
232 flourish. The Small Business Regulatory Flexibility
233 Improvements Act is a bipartisan step, bipartisan maybe not 234 so much on this committee, but overall in the Congress. And 235 it really does help small businesses to flourish, and I urge 236 my colleagues to support the legislation.

237 Chairman Goodlatte. Thank you, Mr. Chabot. I now turn 238 to the ranking member of our Subcommittee on Regulatory 239 Reform, Commercial, and Antitrust Law, the gentleman from 240 Georgia, Mr. Johnson, for his opening statement.

241 Mr. Johnson. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Mr. Chairman, I 242 ask unanimous consent to enter the following into the record:
243 one, an article by the Center for Progressive Reform on the 244 GAO's scathing report on the SBA Office of Advocacy; number 245 two, a copy of the GAO report titled, "Small Business
246 Administration Office of Advocacy Needs to Improve Controls
247 over Research, Regulatory, and Workforce Planning 248 Activities;" and, three, letters from the Coalition for

249 Sensible Safeguard and the American Sustainable Business
250 Council in opposition to H.R. 527.

251 Chairman Goodlatte. Without objection, they will be 252 made a part of the record.

253 [The information follows:]

254

255 Mr. Johnson. Thank you, and, Mr. Chairman, I speak in 256 opposition to H.R. 527, the Small Business Regulatory 257 Flexibility Improvements Act. This deceptively-named 258 legislation does not protect small businesses or individuals
259 from government overreach. To the contrary, this legislation
260 protects large corporations from governmental regulations
261 that protect people and small businesses from predatory 262 corporate practices which eliminate competition and which put 263 people's health and safety at risk. I oppose this 264 legislation which would paralyze agency rulemaking through 265 unworkable complex requirements while aggrandizing the powers
266 of the Small Business Administration's Office of Advocacy 267 with broad authority to act as the gatekeeper of our Nation's 268 regulatory system.

269 H.R. 527 would also allow for large regulated industries 270 to manipulate the regulatory system in their favor, while 271 delaying or blocking critical safeguards for our Nation's 272 food supply, environment, and workforce. That is why the 273 American Sustainable Business Council, a coalition of partner 274 organizations representing over 200,000 businesses and more 275 than 325,000 business professionals, opposes this 276 legislation. This coalition notes that H.R. 527 would erode 277 the operational capacity of regulatory agencies to do their

278 jobs, allowing for the largest firms to further dominate the 279 marketplace. In other words, H.R. 527 is a thinly-veiled 280 handout to large corporations.

281 Mr. Chairman, Americans support smart regulation across 282 party lines, not deregulation. Over 70 percent of Americans 283 support strong rules to ensure an open internet. By a two-284 to-one margin, Americans across the political spectrum
285 support rules to address climate change by limiting emissions
286 from coal-fired power plants. 60 percent of Americans 287 support strict regulation of financial institutions, tougher
288 enforcement, and remain deeply concerned about dangerous 289 financial practices. These are the same rules in the 290 crosshairs of the radical deregulatory agenda of my 291 Republican colleagues.

292 Dangerous policies, like H.R. 527, echo the same
293 laissez-faire rhetoric of deregulation that led to the Great 294 Recession. H.R. 527 is more of the same: another handout 295 for the largest corporate interests, another bill designated 296 to deregulate industries instead of promoting actual 297 governance, and designed to deceive Americans through fuzzy 298 math and unfounded rhetoric.

299 Proponents of H.R. 527 claim that the Obama 300 Administration has already issued hundreds of new rules in

301 2015 alone. These claims are grossly misleading or flat-out
302 wrong. The majority's own sources indicate that just 34 303 final rules were published during that period. In many 304 cases, rules issued in 2015 have been largely administrative 305 and minor. For instance, the Federal Aviation Administration 306 has issued rules considering airworthiness directives, while 307 the Coast Guard has issued its routine rules for bridge
308 opening schedules. These are the very rules that undergird
309 our Nation's regulatory system and successful day-to-day
310 operations of the Nation, illustrating the importance of a 311 functional regulatory system.

312 It bears repeating that if H.R. 527 were law, agencies
313 could not issue even minor administrative rules without first 314 following the bill's onerous, complex, and costly analytical 315 requirements. Once this bill passes, if it should pass, it 316 races America back towards an uncivilized badland. But what 317 more can we expect from a party that rejects the findings of 318 the scientific, academic, and policy communities in favor of 319 reckless ideology?

320 Mr. Chairman, we need real solutions to help real 321 people. We need legislation and regulations that protect and 322 promote a civilized society. We need legislation that 323 creates middle class security and opportunity, and we need

324 sensible regulations that protect American families from 325 financial ruin, that encourage competition, that bring 326 predatory financial practices to an end, legislation that 327 brings the United States in conformity with the rest of the 328 industrialized world's employment policies by guaranteeing 329 paid sick and parental leave.

330 According to the Rutger's Center for Women and Work, 331 paid family leave increases wages for women with children
332 while saving the Federal government funds that would 333 otherwise be allocated to assistance programs. Fair wages 334 equal less dependency on government. Is that not what my 335 friends want on the other side, legislation that increases
336 our global competitiveness by creating an affordable 337 higher --

338 Chairman Goodlatte. The gentleman is advised that his 339 time has long expired, and we hope that he can wrap it up.

340 Mr. Johnson. I will. Thank you for bearing with me,
341 Mr. Chairman. Strong evidence from a Department of Education
342 report roundly demonstrates that investing in our education
343 system expands job opportunities. So in other words, we need 344 actual governance that helps the middle class, grows the 345 economy, and promotes international competitiveness. And with 346 that, Mr. Chairman, with the hope that we will soon get to 347 that kind of legislation, I will yield back.

348 Chairman Goodlatte. The chair thanks the gentleman.

349 Are there any amendments to H.R. 527?

350 For what purpose does the gentleman from Georgia seek 351 recognition?

352 Mr. Johnson. I have an amendment at the desk.

353 Chairman Goodlatte. The clerk will report the 354 amendment.

355 Ms. Deterding. Amendment to H.R. 527, offered by Mr.
356 Johnson of Georgia, add at the end of the bill the 357 following --

358 Mr. Johnson. Mr. Chairman, I would ask that it be 359 reported as read.

360 Chairman Goodlatte. Without objection, the amendment
361 will be considered as read.

362 [The amendment of Mr. Johnson follows:]

363

364 Chairman Goodlatte. And the gentleman from Georgia is 365 recognized for 5 minutes on his amendment.

366 Mr. Johnson. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I seek support
367 of my amendment, which would exempt from H.R. 527 all rules
368 that the Office of Management and Budget determines would 369 result in net job creation. Under President Obama, our 370 country has rebounded from the Great Recession, and it is 371 roaring back to life, creating 11 million new jobs over 5
372 years as unemployment is falling at the fastest rate in 3 373 decades. Consumer and business spending have catalyzed the 374 fastest gross domestic product growth since 2003. My 375 amendment would ensure that this meteoric growth and progress 376 continues.

377 Contrary to my Republican colleagues' assertion that 378 regulations kill jobs, a wealth of unimpeachable bipartisan 379 evidence has repeatedly and effectively debunked this claim.
380 The OMB estimated over the last decade that major regulations
381 benefitted the economy between $217 billion and $863 billion 382 a year at a mere cost of $57 to $84 billion. Studies by both 383 the San Francisco and New York Federal Reserve found that 384 there is zero correlation between job growth and regulations, 385 and that there is absolutely no evidence showing that 386 increased regulations and taxes have any effect on the 387 unemployment rate.

388 Any evidence that regulations harm the economy, some 389 absurd figures repeated by the proponents of this bill, which 390 are derived from a study roundly disproven by the nonpartisan
391 Congressional Research Service, which found that the study's 392 cost figures were cherry picked, inaccurate based on evidence 393 from decades ago, and without contemporary value. Indeed, 394 the very authors of this study have since repudiated its use 395 in policy debates because it lacks any consideration of the 396 benefits of regulations which OMB estimates to be in the 397 hundreds of billions of dollars.

398 Alarming, but not surprisingly, this study was 399 sponsored by the Small Business Administration's Office of 400 Advocacy, the same entity that H.R. 527 would ordain as the 401 gatekeeper for the Administrative Procedure Act and all 402 rulemaking that has any economic impact, no matter how slight 403 or attenuated that impacted may be.

404 I have also heard my Republican colleagues repeatedly 405 claim that regulations put a $15,000 regulatory burden on 406 every American family. Consequently, the Washington Post
407 awarded this claim two Pinocchios. I gave it my own three 408 thumbs down. But the two Pinocchios was on January the 14th, 409 arguing that this absurd figure has serious methodological

410 problems. Even the report admits it is not scientific and is 411 back of the envelope. And we fear that these caveats are 412 being forgotten as it is repeated in Capitol Hill news
413 conferences and then in news reports. Even the president of 414 the U.S. Chamber of Commerce acknowledged that the figures
415 used to generate this number include many necessary
416 regulations that are important for the economy and supported 417 by the chamber.

418 Mr. Chairman, economic job growth is growing at its 419 fastest pace in years on the back of sound economic policy
420 and sensible regulations. Despite this growth, it is clear 421 that many continue to struggle to live comfortably on their 422 income, pay their bills on time, or set aside for retirement.
423 Americans work harder than ever thanks to corporations
424 maximizing profits through a streamlined workforce. The same 425 corporations that are continuing to show record profit
426 margins are also pushing deregulation and fewer taxes, 427 showing what Henry Blodgett, the CEO of Business Insider and 428 a former top-ranked financial analyst, calls a "myopic
429 obsession with short-term profits at the expense of long-term 430 value creation."

431 It is also clear that despite this incredible workplace 432 productivity, wages are depressed. Meanwhile, the world's

433 top 1 percent will soon control half of the world's wealth
434 and the compensation of corporate executive balloons ever
435 larger. We need to fix that, and deregulation will not fix 436 that. Last Congress, Republicans blocked Democratic 437 legislation that would increase the Federal minimum wage by 438 less than $3, lifting countless full-time workers out of 439 poverty, while saving the Federal government trillions in 440 annual safety net costs.

441 Fortunately for millions of Americans, minimum wage
442 increases have gone into effect in 20 States this month
443 alone, bringing the minimum wage in 29 States above the 444 Federal minimum wage. Perhaps my Republican colleagues will 445 heed the calls of the workers across the country for a living 446 wage.

447 I ask that my colleagues support my amendment to protect 448 jobs, and I yield back the balance of my time.

449 Chairman Goodlatte. The chair thanks the gentleman and 450 recognizes himself in opposition to the amendment. I share 451 and welcome the gentleman's concerns about the impacts of 452 regulations on jobs, but the right way to address that 453 concern is to join me in supporting this bill. At the heart 454 of the bill are reforms to make sure agencies better identify 455 the potential jobs impacts of new rules. That includes not

456 only identifying and minimizing adverse jobs impacts, but 457 maximizing positive job benefits. And it is right there in 458 Subsection 2(c) on page 3 of the bill.

459 The gentleman's amendment represents the wrong way to 460 address jobs concerns. That is because it would give the 461 executive branch a strong incentive to manipulate its jobs 462 impact analyses to avoid the requirements of the bill rather 463 than comply with them. So I urge my colleagues to oppose the 464 amendment.

465 Mr. Conyers. Mr. Chairman?

466 Chairman Goodlatte. For what purpose does the gentleman
467 from Michigan seek recognition?

468 Mr. Conyers. I rise to support the Johnson --

469 Chairman Goodlatte. The gentleman is recognized for 5
470 minutes.

471 Mr. Conyers. Thank you very much, because it is 472 critical that every member of the committee realize that 473 regulations do not kill jobs. This is something that we 474 should consider because a report from the Bureau of Labor
475 Statistics on January 9th found that 2014 was the best year
476 for job growth since 1999, with nearly 3 million new jobs
477 created, and unemployment has dropped to the lowest since 478 2008 at 5.6 percent. Regulation then has not impeded this 479 recent job growth.

480 Instead of helping to create jobs, I am sorry to report
481 this bill burdens agencies with costly and unnecessary
482 analysis that will waste millions of taxpayer dollars. This 483 amendment, by exempting any rules deemed by the OMB director 484 to result in net job creation, protects rules that are 485 strengthening our economy and creating jobs from the onerous 486 requirements of the bill. Supporters of this bill should be 487 prepared to support a job creation exemption to the 488 legislation. If they do not, their failure to do so would 489 belie their assertion that this bill has anything to do with 490 job creation.

491 And so, I urge support of the Johnson amendment, and I
492 yield back the balance of my time, and thank the chairman.

493 Chairman Goodlatte. For what purpose does the gentleman
494 from California seek recognition?

495 Mr. Issa. Strike the last word.

496 Chairman Goodlatte. The gentleman is recognized for 5
497 minutes.

498 Mr. Issa. Mr. Chairman, we have voted on this bill 499 before. I suspect that many of us will vote the same way.
500 But I would be remiss if I did not ask the gentleman from 501 Georgia, Mr. Johnson, since he cited a number of studies,

502 between now and the time of the floor markup, if you could 503 make some of those specific citings of congressional research
504 available, I would appreciate it.

505 As to the question of the exemption, at least with the 506 information I have, it would appear that the argument of my 507 colleagues is that regulations have created jobs. And, Mr.
508 Conyers, you said it very well. We have had lots of 509 regulations under this Administration, an incredible growth
510 in regulations. And obviously we have got the lowest 511 unemployment we have had in 8 year or 6 years, and there has 512 been wonderful growth.

513 So the idea that we have a regulation on the regulators
514 that will create new jobs by putting to work regulators
515 looking at the regulations by definition should be supported 516 by you. The fact is the argument that regulations create 517 jobs would cause you to want to --

518 Mr. Nadler. Would the gentleman yield?

519 Mr. Issa. In a moment. The regulators should want to, 520 in fact, have this kind of regulatory look at regulations.
521 Now, by being a little sarcastic, I say so because it is just 522 common sense that we should be looking as we do at the cost
523 of regulations. There is a requirement, as you know, special 524 requirement if you exceed $100 million and the cost of a

525 regulation. These have been done and looked at under both 526 Republicans and Democratic administrations. This is simply 527 another common sense requirement that the Office of 528 Management and Budget really look at regulations and be 529 responsible.

530 If there is a regulation that creates a job outside the 531 beltway, I would like to see it. But so far in my years in 532 business, what I found was regulations created overhead at 533 businesses, but never actually created the kinds of jobs that 534 create things, that grow things, that invent things. So I, 535 with the knowledge I have at this time, will not be 536 supporting the amendment. And I would yield to the gentleman 537 from New York.

538 Mr. Nadler. I am sorry. I am so confounded by your 539 argument that I could not express it.

540 Mr. Issa. I was just going with Mr. Conyers.

541 Mr. Nadler. Yes. I do not think that anyone is saying 542 that regulations create jobs and, therefore, we should have 543 more regulations to create more jobs.

544 Mr. Issa. I think that is what I heard the ranking 545 member say.

546 Mr. Nadler. I do not think that is what he said.
547 Regulations can do all kinds of things. They can save lives.

548 They can make the economy more efficient perhaps depending 549 what they are intended to do. We already have in the law a 550 requirement for cost benefit analysis. The problem with this 551 bill is that it tilts the playing field toward more of a cost
552 analysis without a cost benefit analysis. We already have a 553 cost benefit analysis in our regulations --

554 Mr. Issa. Reclaiming my time. I think the gentleman 555 makes a good point. I just think that he did misinterpret.
556 This is, in fact, a recognition that sometimes there is a 557 balance between not just cost benefit, but also job creation, 558 job destruction. And we are talking about jobs other than 559 complying with the regulations.

560 So as I did hear the former chairman of the full 561 committee, our ranking member, say we have had a growth in 562 regulations, we have had a growth in jobs. Well, I think for 563 many of us who grew up reading Ayn Rand, we realize that we 564 owe the growth in jobs to the private sector who have worked 565 hard, often in spite of a growth in regulations. And I agree 566 with the gentleman from New York. We need to make sure that 567 we do not overlook regulations that are necessary nor 568 implement them without the kind of due diligence that the 569 underlying bill calls for. I thank the gentleman, and I 570 yield back, Mr. Chairman.

571 Mr. Nadler. Mr. Chairman?

572 Chairman Goodlatte. For what purpose does the gentleman
573 from New York seek recognition?

574 Mr. Nadler. Strike the last word.

575 Chairman Goodlatte. The gentleman is recognized for 5
576 minutes.

577 Mr. Nadler. I just want to say a couple of things.
578 First, a 2013 study from the San Francisco Federal Reserve 579 found that there was no correlation between job growth in 580 2008 to 2011, and the increase in the percentage of 581 businesses citing regulations as a primary concern. The 582 results of the study found the opposite to be true. The 583 Mainstream Alliance, an alliance of small businesses, 584 observes, "In survey after survey and interview after 585 interview, mainstream business owners confirm that what we 586 really need is more customers, more demand, not deregulation.
587 The proposition that regulations hamper job growth is a 588 myth."

589 Let me say the following. We need regulations 590 obviously. The fact that we have had more regulations and 591 more employment is not a correlation, and I do not think 592 anyone was intending to say "correlation." But it was 593 intended to say that it destroys the myth, that despite the

594 fact that we had more regulations, we had more jobs. There 595 is no evidence frankly of any connection between the two.

596 Now, we need regulations to protect society, and we 597 ought to do a cost benefit analysis. But the general 598 assumption that regulations cost jobs is just that, an 599 assumption. There is no evidence for it whatsoever. What 600 there is evidence for and what the history of economics shows 601 very clearly is a direct relationship between job growth and 602 aggregate demand in the economy. When there is no aggregate
603 demand, there is no job growth. When there is no aggregate 604 demand, there is job collapse, in fact.

605 And you can chart the demand, the ability of people to 606 have money to spend. 70 percent of aggregate demand in the 607 economy is consumer spending. You can trace that with job
608 growth. And when aggregate demand, when people do not have 609 money to spend, when the mortgages collapse because the 610 bankers misbehave and people do not have money to spend, then 611 you get a job loss, or when there is a collapse for some 612 other reason.

613 When there is demand, whether, by the way, that demand
614 is created by the private sector or by the government sector.
615 World War II conservatives say, to some extent correctly, 616 cured the Depression, not the New Deal. What was World War

617 II from an economic point of view? A huge government
618 spending program, a huge government public works program 619 financed by huge levels of taxation and huge levels of 620 deficit spending. And, yes, it generated tremendous jobs and 621 cured the Depression, the part of the Depression that had not 622 been already cured.

623 We must also note that a healthier workforce, every 624 study shows, is a more productive workforce, and regulations 625 protect health and safety, so we have got to have 626 regulations. I would also say, by the way, that the 627 assertion that under Obama Administration there have been a 628 lot more regulations than under previous administrations also 629 is not pointed out by the statistics.

630 But forgetting that, you have to look at regulations on 631 their own merits. You have to give time to look at them and 632 examine them properly. You have to give the supporters and 633 the opponents proper time and opportunity to be heard. You 634 have to do a cost benefit analysis, but not a one-sided
635 analysis such as this bill would demand. I yield back.

636 Chairman Goodlatte. For what purpose does the gentleman
637 from Ohio seek recognition?

638 Mr. Chabot. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I will not take 639 the 5 minutes, but just a couple of comments. First of all,

640 this is not a cost benefit bill. It is a cost effective 641 bill. It would help agencies to identify the least costly
642 way for agencies to regulate. And I would like to compliment
643 the gentleman from Georgia's speechwriter, unless he wrote it 644 himself, for coming up with terms like that we are allegedly 645 trying to create uncivilized badlands. It is not accurate, 646 but it is creative, and somewhat catchy.

647 Mr. Johnson. Thank you, sir. That was my own thought.

648 Mr. Chabot. I compliment the gentleman. It is catchy.
649 It was memorable. Not accurate, but memorable. All that the 650 legislation really does is it requires Federal agencies to 651 assess the economic impact, regulations on small businesses, 652 and to measure both the direct economic effects and 653 reasonable foreseeable indirect economic effects of 654 regulations on small businesses, because they are the job
655 generators in the economy nowadays.

656 About 70 percent, as I said before, of the new jobs in 657 this economy are created by small businesses. And why not 658 require the government to do this smarter when you are 659 dealing with these entities, which does not take too much to 660 push them over the edge, and they cease to exist. And then 661 those jobs go away, or other jobs that would have been are 662 never created. So I think we can work on these things down

663 the road. And as I say, it was passed in previous Congresses 664 with some Democratic support.

665 Mr. Conyers. Would the gentleman yield?

666 Mr. Chabot. I would be happy to yield to the gentleman.

667 Mr. Conyers. I am impressed with your logic and 668 rationality. I happen to think that the coalition of 200,000
669 small businesses who oppose this bill, and I am going to put 670 their letter that was addressed to me and Chairman Goodlatte, 671 into the record. They are called the American Sustainable 672 Business Council Action Fund.

673 [The information follows:]

674

675 Mr. Conyers. But for your other colleague, our 676 colleague, Darrell Issa, anybody that read Ayn Rand and then 677 remembered it to this day, and now uses it publicly, I have 678 to forgive him for his mixing fact and fiction. Thank you.

679 [Laughter.]

680 Mr. Chabot. Reclaiming my time, I am sure he 681 appreciates that forgiveness. And relative to those 200,000 682 small businesses, we would love to see that, and we would 683 love to correspond with them. And I would also remind the 684 gentleman that probably the most renowned organization of 685 small businesses, the NFIB, National Federation of 686 Independent Businesses, wholeheartedly supports passage of 687 this legislation. I yield back.

688 Chairman Goodlatte. The question occurs on the 689 amendment offered by the gentleman from Georgia.

690 All those in favor, respond by saying aye.

691 Those opposed, no.

692 In the opinion of the chair, the noes have it. The 693 amendment is not agreed to.

694 Mr. Johnson. Mr. Chairman, I ask for a recorded vote, 695 please.

696 Chairman Goodlatte. A recorded vote is requested, and

805 Ms. Deterding. Mr. Chairman, 7 members voted aye, 15
806 members voted no.
807 Chairman Goodlatte. And the amendment is not agreed to.
808 Mr. Conyers. Mr. Chairman?
809 Chairman Goodlatte. For what purpose does the gentleman
810 from Michigan --
811 Mr. Conyers. I have an amendment at the desk.
812 Chairman Goodlatte. The clerk will report the

813 amendment.

814 Ms. Deterding. Amendment to H.R. 527, offered by Mr.

815 Conyers of Michigan, beginning on page 14, line 10 --

816 Chairman Goodlatte. Without objection, the gentleman's

817 amendment is considered as read.

818 [The amendment of Mr. Conyers follows:]

819

820 Chairman Goodlatte. And Mr. Conyers is recognized for 5
821 minutes on his amendment.

822 Mr. Conyers. Mr. Chairman, all I do in this amendment
823 is strike Section 5 of the bill. And this amendment by doing 824 that will preserve the ability of agencies to quickly respond 825 to emergencies that threaten Americans' health and safety by 826 striking one of the most pernicious elements of this 827 legislation; that is, to strike Section 5 and redesignate the 828 provisions accordingly.

829 Section 5 contains one of the most problematic
830 provisions that regardless of how you feel about this bill, I 831 think we can agree that as drafted, could undermine the 832 ability of agencies to quickly respond to emergent health and 833 safety risks. This section repeals the authority under 834 current law that allows an agency to waive or delay the 835 initial analysis required under the Regulatory Flexibility 836 Act in response to an emergency that makes compliance or 837 timely compliance impractical.

838 Rather than leave this critical exception under current 839 law in place, Section 5 replaces it with a provision 840 empowering the chief counsel for advocacy to issue 841 regulations about how agencies in general should comply with 842 the act, without any provision allowing agencies to respond

843 to emergencies through expedited rulemaking. So if there is 844 a looming national pandemic or an environmental disaster that 845 could be avoided or mitigated through regulation, the bill 846 prevents agencies from responding to such emergencies without 847 first having to go through the arduous and time-consuming 848 task of review and analysis. This requirement in the bill is 849 slightly wrongheaded and jeopardizes the health and safety of 850 all Americans. My amendment restores the critical exception 851 under current law that allows agencies to quickly respond to 852 emergencies without being hampered or second guessed.

853 And so, I urge my colleagues to thoughtfully support the 854 Conyers amendment, and I yield back the balance of my time, 855 Mr. Chairman. And thank you.

856 Chairman Goodlatte. The chair thanks the gentleman.
857 For what purpose does the gentleman from Ohio seek 858 recognition?

859 Mr. Chabot. Move to strike the last word.

860 Chairman Goodlatte. The gentleman is recognized for 5
861 minutes.

862 Mr. Chabot. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I oppose the 863 amendment, and I would urge my colleagues to do the same.
864 One of the key failings of existing law is that it allows 865 different agencies to interpret differently the terms of the

866 Regulatory Flexibility Act and the Small Business Regulatory 867 Enforcement Fairness Act. This allows agencies to find 868 loopholes at their pleasure and evade the requirements of the 869 law.

870 The bill remedies this defect by granting the Small 871 Business Administration's Office of Chief Counsel for 872 Advocacy authority to write regulations to govern all 873 agencies' compliance with the RFA and SBREFA. The bill also 874 grants the Office of Chief Counsel authority to intervene in 875 agency adjudications and offer comments in agency notice and 876 comment proceedings. These reforms will at last assure 877 consistent compliance with the RFA and SBREFA across the 878 entire Federal government. This amendment would defeat that 879 purpose and restore to the agencies their ability to find 880 loopholes to suit their whims. America's small business job 881 creators deserve better than that.

882 In addition, the bill performs a bit of housekeeping in 883 the Code by repealing RFA Section 608's waiver provision.
884 This provision is duplicative of Subsection 553(b) of the 885 APA, which is already allowing agencies to dispense with 886 notice and comment for good cause, and, hence, waive RFA
887 compliance since the RFA only applies in notice and comment 888 rulemakings. And for those reasons, I urge my colleagues to 889 oppose this amendment, and I yield back.

890 Chairman Goodlatte. The question occurs on the 891 amendment offered by the gentleman from Michigan.

892 All those in favor, respond by saying aye.

893 Those opposed, no.

894 In the opinion of the chair, the noes have it, and the 895 amendment is not agreed to.

896 Mr. Conyers. May I have a recorded vote?

1015 Are there further amendments?

1016 For what purpose does the gentleman from New York seek 1017 recognition?

1018 Mr. Nadler. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the 1019 desk.

1020 Chairman Goodlatte. The clerk will report the

1021 amendment.

1022 Ms. Deterding. Amendment to H.R. 527, offered by Mr.

1023 Nadler of New York, page 10, beginning on --

1024 Chairman Goodlatte. Without objection, the amendment is 1025 considered as read.

1026 [The amendment of Mr. Nadler follows:]

1027

1028 Chairman Goodlatte. And the gentleman is recognized for 1029 5 minutes on his amendment.

1030 Mr. Nadler. I thank the chairman. Mr. Chairman, my 1031 amendment would require agencies to assess the direct and 1032 indirect benefits, as well as the direct and indirect costs,
1033 when considering proposed rules. The underlying bill
1034 purports to require a fair analysis of the costs and benefits
1035 of the proposed regulations. What it really does is place a 1036 thumb on the scale in favor of calculating costs only. This 1037 way fewer life-saving regulations will have to be issued.
1038 One way the bill does this is by tasking agencies to examine 1039 the indirect economic effects of proposed regulations on 1040 small businesses.

1041 What my amendment does is to clarify that if agencies 1042 must engage in this type of highly speculative analysis of 1043 looking at indirect benefits, then they must also consider 1044 any indirect benefits of the proposed rule along with 1045 indirect costs. I suspect that this legislation excludes 1046 consideration of indirect benefits because its authors know 1047 that benefits consistently outweigh the cost of regulation, 1048 often by many multiples. That makes it harder for them to 1049 block regulations that protect public health and safety, 1050 which they oppose.

1051 This bill tries to get around that problem by imposing 1052 burdensome procedural requirements on agencies and stacking
1053 the analytical deck so that the costs will appear to outweigh 1054 the benefits. And it does that by mandating the analysis of 1055 indirect costs, but not of indirect benefits. My amendment, 1056 therefore, would ensure that any assessment of costs and 1057 benefits be done in an even-handed manner.

1058 Frankly, I think that analyzing the indirect effects, 1059 positive or negative, of regulations is far too speculative 1060 an exercise. Just look at the new budget requirement for so-1061 called dynamic scoring, which Republicans hope will enable 1062 them to enact tax cuts without accounting for the massive 1063 deficits those cuts would create. In this bill, they now 1064 hope to block necessary health and safety regulations by 1065 using the same fuzzy accounting method, except instead of 1066 creating imaginary benefits for tax cuts, they are creating 1067 imaginary costs for regulations. I may oppose this 1068 speculative analysis, but if you are going to consider this 1069 kind of speculative analysis, if you are going to consider 1070 indirect costs, any honest analysis must also include 1071 indirect benefits as well.

1072 Now, I know that some of the proponents of the bill will 1073 say that the underlying law already requires this, but it

1074 does not, or the least is unclear, so no harm can be done to 1075 a fair analysis, to a fair requirement, by requiring that the 1076 indirect benefits as well as the indirect costs be 1077 considered, by making that explicit so that we do not have to 1078 worry, that, as we read it, it does not require analysis of 1079 the indirect benefits. The majority may say it does. Make 1080 it clear that it does, and it would greatly improve the bill.

1081 I urge adoption of the amendment. I thank you, and I 1082 yield back the balance of my time.

1083 Chairman Goodlatte. The chair thanks the gentleman and 1084 recognizes himself in opposition to the amendment, which 1085 fundamentally misunderstands the Regulatory Flexibility
1086 Improvements Act, the underlying Regulatory Flexibility Act
1087 that already is in existence. It is an attempt to insert a 1088 cost benefit issue into a statute that is not a cost benefit 1089 statute.

1090 In rulemaking processes to which the RFA applies, the 1091 agency already has decided to regulate. The only answer is 1092 the best way to regulate; in other words, the lowest cost way
1093 to achieve the already extant benefits in the rule. RFA 1094 analyses do not question the need for a rule, just like an 1095 environmental impact statement prepared under the National 1096 Environmental Policy Act does not question the need for a

1097 dam. Both are intended to try to find the least problematic
1098 way to regulate, or build the rule or the dam. The amendment
1099 tries to change the debate and have the RFA become something 1100 that it is not, so I urge my colleagues to oppose the 1101 amendment.

1102 Mr. Conyers. Mr. Chairman?

1103 Chairman Goodlatte. For what purpose does the gentleman
1104 seek recognition?

1105 Mr. Conyers. I rise in support of the Nadler amendment.

1106 Chairman Goodlatte. The gentleman is recognized for 5
1107 minutes.

1108 Mr. Conyers. And I think that it is only fair that if 1109 we are discussing the indirect costs that we talk about the 1110 indirect benefits of a proposed rule. There is nothing to 1111 misunderstand about that. The benefits of regulations
1112 consistently outweigh the costs. The Office of Management 1113 and Budget estimated that over the last decade, major 1114 regulations benefitted the economy between $217 billion and 1115 $863 billion a year at a cost of between $57 billion to $84
1116 billion. And so, this amendment corrects the deficiency of 1117 the bill, and I strongly recommend to my colleagues that they 1118 support the Nadler amendment. I yield back the balance of my 1119 time.

1120 Chairman Goodlatte. The question occurs on the 1121 amendment offered by the gentleman from New York, Mr. Nadler.
1122 All those in favor, respond by saying aye.
1123 Those opposed, no.
1124 In the opinion of the chair, the noes have it, and the 1125 amendment is not agreed to.

1238 Chairman Goodlatte. Has every member voted who wishes

1239 to vote?

1240 [No response.]

1241 Chairman Goodlatte. The clerk will report.

1242 Ms. Deterding. Mr. Chairman, 9 members voted aye, 17

1243 members voted no.

1244 Chairman Goodlatte. And the amendment is not agreed to.

1245 Are there further amendments to H.R. 527?

1246 Mr. Peters. Mr. Chairman?

1247 Chairman Goodlatte. For what purpose does the gentleman

1248 from California seek recognition?

1249 Mr. Peters. I have an amendment at the desk.

1250 Chairman Goodlatte. The clerk will report the 1251 amendment.

1252 Ms. Deterding. Amendment to H.R. 527, offered by Mr.

1253 Peters of California, add at the end of the bill the

1254 following --

1255 Chairman Goodlatte. Without objection, the amendment is

1256 considered as read.

1257 [The amendment of Mr. Peters follows:]

1258

1259 Chairman Goodlatte. And the gentleman is recognized for 1260 5 minutes on his amendment.

1261 Mr. Peters. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. This amendment
1262 would exempt from the underlying legislation rules that would 1263 protect members of the armed services from predatory lending
1264 practices. Twice last year we requested that the Department 1265 of Defense issue rules to close loopholes in the Financial 1266 Service Protection offered by the Military Lending Act, and 1267 in response the Department issued a preliminary rule in 1268 December of last year that would close these loopholes and 1269 strengthen financial protections for service members on 1270 active duty. Without this amendment, the underlying 1271 legislation could lengthen the rulemaking that is going on 1272 pursuant to our request.

1273 Members of the armed services make sacrifices to protect 1274 us from harm and defend our freedoms. It is our 1275 responsibility to ensure that these men and women are 1276 protected when they return home. Unfortunately, it has 1277 become clear that threats to their wellbeing do not just 1278 exist from abroad, but the nature of military service makes 1279 service members ideal targets for predatory loans with 1280 exorbitant interest rates. The prevalence of these loans led 1281 Congress to pass the Military Lending Act of 2007. That

1282 legislation was designed to eliminate this type of predatory 1283 lending practice that too often leaves service members and 1284 their families with crippling amounts of debt.

1285 Unfortunately, there are a number of loopholes in the 1286 act that predatory lenders have continued to exploit and 1287 require additional action, and these reprehensible predators
1288 trap service members and their families in a cycle of debt
1289 that can be extremely difficult to overcome. We have begun a 1290 bipartisan and a bicameral effort to call on the Department
1291 of Defense to issue rules that close these loopholes and 1292 ensure that our service members do not fall victim to 1293 predatory lending practices that leave them financially
1294 strapped. And my amendment would ensure that DoD can 1295 continue this process that has already begun to protect 1296 service members and their families so we can maintain a 1297 watchful eye on those companies that are exploiting those who 1298 sacrifice so much for our safety and our security.

1299 I hope my colleagues will join me in supporting this 1300 amendment, and, Mr. Chairman, I thank you and yield back.

1301 Chairman Goodlatte. Well, first of all, I recognize 1302 myself, and I would just say to the gentleman I am very 1303 supportive of our brave service men and women, some of whom 1304 have fought for our Nation. All of them have served our

1305 country. And I know that there is a process ongoing to make 1306 sure that they are treated fairly in securing loans.

1307 I quite frankly do not know whether the regulations that 1308 will be written by the Department will be more helpful to 1309 veterans or not as helpful because veterans do need to get 1310 loans. And the question is will the regulations will be such 1311 that they cannot get a loan at all, or will they be written 1312 in such a way that they will be protected against predatory 1313 lending and will not cause that.

1314 So I have only seen this amendment a short time, and I 1315 have not time to carefully review it. I under those 1316 circumstances I must oppose it, but if the gentleman wants to 1317 work with us going to the floor, I can assure the gentleman, 1318 and I think the gentleman would from Ohio would assure him as 1319 well, that we would be happy to work with you on trying to 1320 make sure that we do the best we possibly can to not 1321 interfere with the rulemaking process that is going on right 1322 now for veterans.

1323 Mr. Chabot. Mr. Chairman, would the gentleman yield?

1324 Chairman Goodlatte. Yes, I would be happy to yield.

1325 Mr. Chabot. Yes, I agree with the sentiments of the 1326 chairman of the Judiciary Committee. We would be happy to 1327 work with our colleagues on the other side of the aisle to

1328 see if there is not some accommodation that we can make on 1329 this issue, agreeing with the chairman that I think we all 1330 have our veterans' best interests in mind. I yield back.

1331 Mr. Conyers. Mr. Chairman?

1332 Chairman Goodlatte. Let me yield to the gentleman if 1333 he --

1334 Mr. Peters. Mr. Chairman, I am a new member of this 1335 committee, and I come here in good faith. And given your 1336 offer, I am going to accept it. I like the idea of working 1337 on something, and I hope we are able to get an amendment.
1338 This actually is with regard to active duty.

1339 Chairman Goodlatte. Yes, I understand, and I think you 1340 have a legitimate concern about a pending --

1341 Mr. Peters. I think you mentioned --

1342 Chairman Goodlatte. -- regulation, and I would like to 1343 work with the gentleman.

1344 Mr. Peters. And I would love to see if we cannot 1345 fashion something, and I will take your offer very seriously, 1346 and look forward to working with you. Thank you.

1347 Chairman Goodlatte. Thank you.

1348 Mr. Peters. I will withdraw the amendment.

1349 Chairman Goodlatte. Without objection. The gentleman
1350 from Michigan is recognized.

1351 Mr. Conyers. Mr. Chairman, I was prepared to argue that 1352 under these circumstances, we ought to accept the gentleman's 1353 amendment and play it safe so that at least we will have an 1354 indication of which way we are going rather than to say we 1355 will hold off and wait to see how everything else turns out.
1356 So I would have urged the gentleman to keep his amendment 1357 going and have a vote on it, and have a record on an 1358 amendment for veterans that is very, very important.

1359 Mr. Johnson. Would the gentleman yield?

1360 Mr. Conyers. Of course, I would be pleased to.

1361 Mr. Johnson. Yes, I would join the chairman in urging 1362 the gentleman to not withdraw the amendment. The fact that 1363 we are here dealing with this bill that has not gone through 1364 regular order is itself an indication of the lack of 1365 accommodating ability by my friends on the other side with 1366 respect to this issue. So I would support the ranking 1367 member's appeal.

1368 Mr. Conyers. I yield back.

1369 Chairman Goodlatte. Without objection, the gentleman's 1370 amendment is withdrawn, and the question now occurs -- are 1371 there other amendments?

1372 [No response.]

1373 Chairman Goodlatte. If not, the question occurs on

1374 passage of the bill. A reporting quorum being present, the 1375 question is on the motion to report the bill favorably to the 1376 House.

1377 Those in favor will say aye.

1378 Those opposed, no.

1379 In the opinion of the chair, the ayes have it, and the 1380 bill is ordered reported favorably.

1381 Mr. Conyers. Record vote, please.

1383 the clerk will call the roll quickly.

1384 Ms. Deterding. Mr. Goodlatte?

1385 Chairman Goodlatte. Aye.

1386 Ms. Deterding. Mr. Goodlatte votes aye.

1387 Mr. Sensenbrenner?

1388 [No response.]

1489 Chairman Goodlatte. Has every member voted who wishes
1490 to vote?

1491 [No response.]

1492 Chairman Goodlatte. The clerk will report.

1493 Ms. Deterding. Mr. Chairman, 19 members voted aye, 8
1494 members voted no.

1495 Chairman Goodlatte. The ayes have it, and the bill is 1496 ordered reported favorably to the House. Members will have 2 1497 days to submit views.

1498 [The information follows:]

1499

1500 Chairman Goodlatte. I want to thank all the members who 1501 are still here for their participation. That concludes 1502 today's business, and the meeting is adjourned.
1503 [Whereupon, at 3:54 p.m., the committee was adjourned.]
